Dear Valued IAIDQ Member,

Welcome to 2005's second quarterly IAIDQ newsletter! I hope you find this quarter's content both interesting and useful. I am very grateful to all who contribute their time and effort to plan, collate, and edit the newsletter, and of course those who write content for it.

The IAIDQ's board and advisors have had a very busy three months since our last issue. As many of you should know by now, the IAIDQ is partnering with Information Impact International Inc. to organize this year's Information Quality Conference. The conference takes place in the US September 19th through the 23rd in Houston, Texas. We have had an overwhelming response from those wishing to present and share their Information and Data Quality experiences with the attendees. We have also received so many talented and interesting tutorial submissions, and are fortunate to have respected and recognized individuals agree to keynote the conference.

We have been working recently to secure a partnership with another, well known, professional association. I think that this is another example of the types of great partnerships we can develop to bring value to our members. We will be letting you know the details of this and other partnerships in due course as and when the agreements are signed and finalized.

If you have any comments or suggestions on how the board, advisors, or the association is doing as a whole, please do not hesitate to contact me. My email inbox is always open!

Best wishes and warmest regards!
